“ What year is that?!

“ For fifteen years, we were Bill's upstairs neighbors at Indian Creek. Over those years we all grew a deep affection and friendship for each other: we told him that he was the best neighbor imaginable. Bill was a gifted storyteller, and told us much about his life, especially his service during WWII and the Korean war. He liked to end our many conversations by telling a Jewish joke from his vast inventory. We loved Bill: his memory is already a blessing to our family. We especially valued the special bond between Bill and our son, Asher. He met Asher when he was 6. Bill spent his last evening in conversation outside with Asher, now 21. Asher has written his own tribute to Bill:

Dear Magnus family,

I am so sorry for your loss. Bill Magnus was a remarkable man and an amazing neighbor. From the day my family moved to the apartment above his fifteen years ago, he has been like a surrogate grandfather to me, and I am incredibly grateful to everything he gave to me, from baseball lessons to wonderful discussions on our front “porch.” I will miss him so much, but I know that I'll always hold onto everything he taught me – I could never have dreamed of a kinder and more caring neighbor, or a more meaningful mentor for a kid who didn't have much family in the area.

Zichrono livracha,

Asher Weinstein
