In December, he was beaming as he accompanied his daughter down the aisle to be given to his incredible (now son-in-law) Brian Schottenstein. Jay proudly shared this age-old tradition with his father Stan, each bookending his lovely daughter, Toria. When he spoke about Zachary and Toria you could hear his pride and joy.

Jay discovered his passion for music, specifically the guitar in middle school and consistently pursued it. Throughout his life he played his many guitars with a variety of bands whose music crossed the gamut: various kinds of rock, jazz and most recently guitar duets. Over the years he taught guitar to a multitude of people. Most recently, his passion shined most brightly with his guitar duet partner, also his amazing girlfriend, Amy McFarland.

Every day Jay went "jay walking" exploring his beloved city, Cincinnati; often discovering long forgotten places like outdoor steps with vegetation growing through its cracks and numbering in excess of 100. Jay touched the lives of so many through his music. You will hear his spirit in music, listen carefully for it.

“ I'm so very sorry to hear about Jay. God bless his soul and prayers for all he left behind. I babysat Jay and his sisters, first in their home on Fleming Road and then in their big, beautiful home on Wyoming Avenue. Jay was always such a sweet little boy. He had the best smile. “ Jay Aronoff sparkled. His personality was such that he gave all who knew him a smile. He was a very accomplished musician and his music and lyrics reflected his feelings. I have always been so happy to be his aunt.

The most special moment was watching him and his father “Stan” walk his beautiful daughter Toria down the isle to marry Brian Schottenstein. I know it was a high point of his” life. I will always love him and his soul will remain as part of my heart forever.
