

Jay FABERMAN

January 24, 2012

FABERMAN, Jay, age 70, passed away January 24, 2012 of complications from a bone-marrow transplant. Beloved husband of 47 years to Ellen Faberman, devoted father of Austin(Heather Rossman) Faberman & Nicole(Paul) Gehle, loving grandfather of Seth, Shane & Jordan, dear brother of Edward(Linda) Faberman, and uncle of Adam & Jeffrey. He was born July 20, 1941 in the Bronx, NY, a few blocks from Yankee Stadium, and was a lifetime Yankee fan. While he worked for several large companies, he retired from Procter & Gamble where he worked with a multitude of established and new products, including Oil of Olay, Swiffer & Febreze. Jay was a graduate of Bucknell University and of the Columbia University Graduate School of Business. In between, he served two years of active duty in the US Army during the Vietnam Era. In recent years, he was a volunteer with the Executive Service Corp. of Cincinnati, working with a number of non-profit agencies. He was also an avid cyclist and truly enjoyed cycling with many of his Cincinnati cycling buddies. He owned 5 bikes and often said that, "any day on the bike is a good day." He worked hard at improving his skills and was able to achieve a third place finish in the Ohio State Time Trial Championships, when he was at his best. Memorial services Weil Funeral Home, 8350 Cornell Rd., Cinti, OH 45249 on Sunday, February 26, 12:00 Noon. Visitation begins at 11:00 A.M. A luncheon will follow at the funeral home 1:00-2:00 P.M. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions to The Queen City Wheels(a club Jay belonged to and loved.) For donations: click on
