“ I worked at Emerson North with Max. What a good guy! He lived with passion and cared for adolescents who were troubled. His sense of humor, love for music and spiritual quest, really inspired me. I appreciate having know this wonderful man!!! Rest in sweet peace, dear friend!

“ When I moved to Cincinnati many years ago, Max's name and phone number were in my pocket. I had been told to contact him. I did, and many meaningful visits and conversations followed. Both of us were taking care of our mothers, and we also connected in our Jewish backgrounds and spiritual life. Max was good to me in our friendship, thoughtful and responsive, and I am grateful for our times together. Happy trails, dear one.

“ Max was a dear dear friend of mine. I knew him well. He was the first person I met when I moved to Cincinnati in 1973. We shared our spiritual connection over the decades. He has been so generous with my daughter, Isabelle. She lived close to him in a less than safe building. He would make sure she received things she needed. He did so on a consistent basis for many many years. I miss you dear Max but I know your pain has subsided and you are in a very lovely place now.

Your friend, Ty
