“ I knew Phyllis from the Village(Losantaville) Flea Market as well. I worked my father's booth which was across from hers. I cherished our conversations about life in general and hearing her travel stories.

“ As a young girl, I became a customer of Phyllis's at the Losantaville Flea Market. Over the next 40 years we became great flea market friends. We shared stories about children and grandchildren, gave advice to one another about the flea market business and life in general. My kids always knew where to find me on the weekend. She even trusted me to monitor her booth when she had other things to do.
She guided me through being the African-American mother-in-law to a fine young Jewish gentleman.
I almost cried when I saw that the building had been torn down. She gave me 50 years of memories filled with nothing but laughter and kindness. Phyllis dearly loved her family, and shared all of their life experiences with her customers. She will be missed.
